

Explore North Omaha!

1 Start the day with a little culture

The General Crook House Museum on North 30th Street offers plenty of opportunities to learn more about the history of Omaha. Save the date for the Second Sunday of each month — they host Second Sunday talks that showcase topics, past and present, that have a direct relevance to Douglas County.

2 I never want to stop learning!

Sign up for a non-credit class at Metro Community College. They offer hundreds of interesting classes at their Fort Omaha Classes. Their culinary school is top notch! Learn pasta basics, canning principles, and the essentials every amateur chef should know.

3 Can we stop for a quick bite?

Sage Student Bistro at the aforementioned Metro Community College Culinary School is a must! They only operate during the fall, winter, and spring seasons though. In the off chance your fine dining cravings don't align then head over to Big Mama's Kitchen on North 45th Street. (Word has it that Gabrielle Union is even a fan!)

4 Now I'm ready for a good drink!

Head on over to Love's Jazz and Arts Center. Their mission is to preserve, promote and present African-American art and jazz. The venue is full of art, music, and good times.

5 I'm dying to check out more. Where should I go next time?

Surfside Club is a down-to-earth dining venue along the Missouri River. The eatery serves fried catfish, fried chicken and hush puppies, but its charm — at least for some — resides in the water. During boating season, passing river cruisers greet customers by dropping their pants.
